Veterans Deserve More

In just one year, 37,800 Veterans were homeless and 23,300 were unsheltered and living on the streets. This is so wrong because they put their lives on hold for us and we don’t repay them and allow them to sleep on the streets? Our country needs to do a better job at helping shelter veterans. We need to help and prevent homeless veterans.

One way to help homeless veterans would be to build a building that they could live until they are able to either get a job, save up enough money, and then either buy a home or rent somewhere to live. This would help them not have so much worry about how they are going to survive and will help them get back on their feet. The building complex could have homes, counselors, drivers if they need to go somewhere, and doctors. A veteran would have almost everything they need in one spot which would be helpful - especially if they are physically or mentally disabled from serving.

A way to help prevent or stop veterans from being homeless would be put up signs directing where the housing complex is and to tell them this information when they get from serving. If a veteran doesn’t know what they are able to receive they won’t know that they can live there. I would also want to help prevent homelessness by allowing veterans to use and have a service animal. A service animal is important because they will help the veteran get to where they need to go, and if they are working or out and about and have a flashback, they will be comforted by their animal and be able to keep doing what they need to do.

In conclusion, there are many way to help and prevent veterans from being homeless. We all need to help veterans get back on their feet and have a good life because they deserve it for serving us and our country. Veterans should never have to worry since they give up so much for us each and every day. If we set them up with housing they would have less to worry about.
